Summary

Thomas was called to the Bar in 2010 and practices as a Family and Public Access barrister. Before joining KCH Garden Square in 2015 Thomas practised from a set of Chambers in Leicester.

Thomas has considerable experience of Public and Private Law Children Act proceedings, with a particular emphasis on complex welfare hearings. Thomas acts for Local Authorities, the Official Solicitor, parents, grandparents, children and Children's Guardians. Thomas has extensive experience of representing vulnerable clients including victims of domestic violence and those with learning disabilities.

Thomas' approach to his clients is noted as being warm, open minded, tenacious and thorough, be they lay or professional clients. He is known for his empathetic, honest and concise advice.

Thomas' breadth of experience in other areas of law including immigration, employment, criminal and civil matters means that he is often to assist clients on issues that affect them in a variety of jurisdictions and tribunals. This enables Thomas to advise on how different aspects of a clients case impact on others.
